POETRY

WASHINGTON STATUE IN ENGLAND, O Chief who twice for England fought Against her savage focs, And once, withstanding England's king A patriot army dared to bring, Injustice to oppose!

What girdness filled your soul of late, When from high Heaven you saw America and England fight Together on the side of right, For liberty and law!

Stand here on this ancestral ground,
Virginia's greatest son;
Nelson will look you in the face
And greet the grandson of his race—
Immortal Washington.

While that deep-rected friendship holds
Across the storm-swept see.
No mail non-dreams, no tyrant's wrath
Shall turn true Prectom from her path
Until the world is free.

Henry Van Dyke, in the London Times

Ye may they have all passed away,
That noble race and brave;
That their light causes have vanished
From off the creeted waves;
That, 'mid the forests where they ore rings no hunter's shout; their name is on your waters-may not wash it out. where Ontario's billow Like ocean's surge is curied;

Where strong Niggara's thunders wake
The coho of the world;
Where red Missouri bring—a
Rich tribute from the west.
And Rappahamneck sweetly sleeps
On green Virginia's breast.

Ye may their concilie cabins,
That clustered o'er the vale,
Have fiel away, like withered leages
Before the Adumn gale;
Int their memory liveth on your hills.
Their haptism on you rehore.
Your everlasting rivers speak
Their dialect of yore.

Wachinget hides its lingering voice
Within its rocky heart.
And Allegheny graves its tone
Througouh his lofty chart;
Monadnock on his forehead hoar,
Duth seal the macred trust;
Your mountains build their monument,
Though ye destroy their durt.

— Lydia Huntley Sigourney.
